To join the Network cities are required to commit to the following four steps:

FOUR STEPS
1. Establishment of mechanisms to involve older people in all stages of the Age-friendly Cities (AFC) process. Cities are also encouraged to build partnerships with government and civil society (including non-governmental organizations and academic institutions).
2. Development of a baseline assessment of the age-friendliness of the city. This assessment can be flexible to take into account the diversity of cities, however at a minimum, it needs to consider each of the eight domains identified in the WHO Age-friendly Cities Guide.	1. outdoor spaces and buildings, 2. transportation, 3. housing, 4. social participation, 5. respect and social inclusion, 6. civic participation and employment, 7. communication and information, and 8. community support and health services.
3. Development of a 3 year city-wide action plan based on the findings of this assessment.	It is anticipated that the action plan will link to other municipal instruments to ensure that age-friendliness becomes a core responsibility for all municipal departments.
4. Identification of indicators to monitor progress against this plan.

In addition, a letter from the Mayor and municipal administration indicating formal commitment of the municipality to undertake and/or complete the above noted four steps within the next two years is required.

The commitment of the City of Ravne na Koroškem to the WHO Age-friendly Cities project

This is a formal commitment, signed by the mayor of the City of Ravne na Koroškem, the member of the Slovenian Age-friendly Cities Network. The city is committed to further assess its age friendliness and to develop an action plan for further improvement of age-friendly city social culture on the basis of both experience and findings. The city is also agreeing to run the national programme in collaboration with other Slovenian age-friendly cities and to become a member of the WHO Global Network of Age-friendly Cities and respect all its goals and procedures.

Mag. Tomaž ROŽEN,
the mayor of the City of Ravne na Koroškem
