Letter to become a part of – Global Network of Age-friendly Cities and Communities

Commitment to becoming an Age-friendly city

As Mayor of Upplands-Bro, I am writing to express my strong commitment to making our city a place where older adults can thrive. As our population ages, it is important that we create communities that are accessible, safe and supportive for older adults.

I am committed to working with our city departments, local businesses and community organizations to create an environment that meets the needs of our aging population. This includes improving access to transport, health care and recreational opportunities, as well as addressing issues of safety and social isolation.

To achieve these goals, I am directing city departments to prioritize initiatives and programs that support older adults. This includes increased funding for nursing homes, increased transportation options, and the implementation of safety improvements in public spaces. I am also committed to working with local businesses and organizations to create employment and volunteer opportunities for older adults.

I believe that by working together we can create a community that values and supports older adults and enables them to live full and active lives. I look forward to working with you to make Upplands-Bro a Age-friendly city that all residents can be proud of.

Sincerely,

Fredrik Kjos

Mayor, Upplands-Bro
