	2.6.5	Please provide any further information on illicit or smuggled tobacco products. The illicit trade in tobacco products has to some extent been an ongoing issue in New Zealand. It has been difficult to make accurate estimates of the size and scale of the illicit tobacco market due to the limited research available; however, smuggling of tobacco has remained a persistent problem for Customs in different forms for many years. That said, to date, New Zealand has not seen the regular large container-size interceptions of cigarettes that many other countries are experiencing and it is thought that the market share of illicit tobacco remains below the levels encountered in other countries in the Asia Pacific region. The current New Zealand illicit tobacco market is believed to be fuelled by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • small scale importations by passengers exceeding their concession allowance (either unwittingly or as a calculated risk), for personal use. The overwhelming majority of seizures are made at the airports, from incoming air travellers. The

These cigarettes were released once a clarifying sticker was attached to each packet. Other operations over the past five years have involved counterfeit cigarettes, but the extent of this problem is unknown.

2.8.4	Please briefly describe the trends in taxation for tobacco products in the past three years or since submission of your last report in your jurisdiction.

⁵ The “base of the tax” should clearly indicate the tax rate or amount the tax is based on. If the tax is expressed as a percentage (e.g. ad valorem tax), the base of the tax is the actual value of the good that is taxed; for example, 45% of the manufacturer’s price, 30% of the retail price. In this case the “base” is the manufacturer’s price or retail price. If the tax is expressed as an amount (e.g. specific tax), the base of the tax is the volume (number of pieces or by weight) of goods that is taxed. For example, if a tax is US$ 5 per 100 cigarettes, the amount of tax is US$ 5 and the base of the tax is 100 cigarettes.

	Tobacco tax is indexed to the Consumer Price Index and adjusted annually (on 1 January). There have been no other tax increases during this time period.
