

World Health Organization

Addressing social determinants of health among refugees and migrants

27 NOVEMBER - 1 DECEMBER 2023

Livestreaming from Senegal

Agenda

The school will feature five modules delivered over five consecutive days, every day for 90 minutes.

Day 1
27 November

Health literacy

Day 2
28 November

Working conditions

Day 3
29 November

Housing and living conditions

Day 4
30 November

Food and nutrition

Day 5
1 December

Panel discussion on the social determinants of health among refugees and migrants

What each day will look like

Keynote speeches

Live panel discussion

Video reportages

Q&A sessions

Faculty

International experts, academics, researchers, field actors from different regions and disciplines relevant to the area of migration and health including representatives from WHO, other United Nations and international agencies, NGOs.

Target audience

Health sector and government officials, health sector managers, health and non-health sector policy-makers, public health experts, international and nongovernmental organizations, youth associations, academicians, researchers and other relevant sectors contributing to refugee and migrant health.

Open to everyone

More information and registration:

The 2023 Global School is organized by the WHO's Department of Health and Migration in close collaboration with the WHO Health Emergencies Programme, WHO Regional Office for Africa and the WHO Country Office in Senegal. The 2023 Global School is hosted by the Ministry of Health of Senegal and funded by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation of Italy, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Portugal, and Universal Health Coverage Partnership.

WHO's Department of Health and Migration

World Health Organization | 20, Avenue Appia, 1211 Geneva 27, Switzerland | healthmigration@who.int | WHO's Department of Health and Migration (who.int)

